Key West bound

A group of bike enthusiasts from Miami are making their second annual trek to the Southernmost City. The four women and nine men usually make their first stop at Whale Harbor on Friday, "the halfway point," averaging one rest break every 30 miles. Unfortunately, the "breaks" are coming every 15 miles this trip as one of their fellows is trying to break his previous record of five flat tires. Leader Roland Mazzotti gave high marks to the motorists, who for the most part have been "understanding," even when they got caught behind them along a single-lane U.S. 1.
